

Lunch and Dining Options on Capitol Hill

Need to take a break or grab a bite to eat? Going back and forth between meetings with members of Congress can be exhausting. Fortunately, there are plenty of locations across Capitol Hill where advocates can stop to refuel or rest their feet.

House Office Buildings

Cannon House Office Building – The Cannon Coffee Cart in the basement has snacks and coffee available. There is also an Au Bon Pain located on the first floor.

Longworth House Office Building – The Longworth Cafeteria has a wide range of food available, including salads, pizza, sandwiches, and hamburgers. Locations for Dunkin Donuts and Jamba Juice are adjacent to the cafeteria.

Rayburn House Office Building – The Rayburn House Cafeteria has a salad bar and a sushi bar, as well a Steak n' Shake location. A café is adjacent to the Rayburn House Cafeteria.

Senate Office Buildings

Dirksen Senate Office Building – The Dirksen Café and the Coffee Shop have breakfast and lunch items available. Additionally, the Dirksen Cafeteria has cafeteria style food and a large seating area.

Dirksen/Hart Senate Office Buildings – Located in the corridor connecting the Dirksen and Hart buildings, Inside Scoop offers grab-and-go food items.

Russell Senate Office Building - Cups & Company has deli style sandwiches and salads available.

Note: Vending machines are available throughout the House and Senate office buildings.

Several restaurants and cafes are also available outside the US Capitol Complex in the surrounding Capitol Hill neighborhood.

On the Senate side of the Capitol, visitors can enjoy a number of establishments including Union Pub, Junction Bakery and Bistro, and The Dubliner, as well as numerous fast-casual and fast-food locations in Union Station.

The House side of the Capitol features many restaurants along Pennsylvania Avenue, including Sweetgreen, Starbucks, Good Stuff Eatery, and the Hawk 'n' Dove.
