

MEMBERSHIP CRITERIA

Criteria for Regular AACI Membership

Association of American Cancer Institute's (AACI) membership is open to all cancer centers meeting requirements for National Cancer Institute (NCI) designation, as well as to other freestanding and academic cancer centers meeting the criteria below.

Eligible organizations must:

- Be not-for-profit and an integral component of an accredited academic research intensive institution and/or medical school.
- Possess a defined focus on cancer-related discovery to include research and training programs in clinical and/or basic sciences.
- Receive significant cancer-related funding from peer-reviewed sources (e.g., NCI, NIH, DOD, and other federal agencies; American Cancer Society, National Science Foundation, etc.).

Cancer centers with a clinical focus must:

- Possess a wide range of cancer-related clinical disciplines related to patient care, including a broad portfolio of cancer clinical trials.
- Contribute to and actively participate in cancer-related community prevention, education and screening activities.

Revised by the AACI Board 12/17/2007

Revised by the AACI Board 10/03/2010

Revised by the AACI Board 04/05/2014